

Tracy spent nearly 30 years in for-profit healthcare, holding executive positions with national companies, managing large operations. Twenty-five years into her career, she started volunteering at a local animal shelter. As she became more and more involved, she decided that she had a larger contribution to make, so she left the corporate world and took a position at Great Plains SPCA as the Office Manager. Tracy's role at the shelter has evolved and she is now Senior Manager of Events and Programs. Tracy lives with her husband and two rescue dogs, Dupree and Winnie, in the West Plaza neighborhood of Kansas City, Missouri.
